

Voula Liroff leads the Legal team at HealthChannels, a healthcare workforce solutions company. Voula partners across all functions to assist with developing and contributing to ScribeAmerica's strategy and long-term objective of transforming healthcare and the practice of medicine. Voula and her team play an essential role in protecting the interests of the Company's business and employees.

Previously, Voula was an attorney at Morgan, Lewis & Bockius, LLP, an international law firm, focusing her practice on nationwide counseling and litigation for employers across numerous industries. She was also an analyst at an economic and financial consulting firm.

Voula is firmly committed to giving back to the community, serving on the Board of Directors for the Florida Children's Theater, as well as the auxiliary board for Jack and Jill Children's Center, a nonprofit organization providing early childhood education and wrap-around support to high-need families. Voula previously served as a director of the board for the Leadership Broward Foundation.

Voula holds a Juris Doctor from Columbia Law School and a Bachelor of Arts in Economics from Columbia College, Columbia University.

Voula is married with two children. Voula spends her free time with the people she loves and playing tennis.
